AIDS United’s mission is to end the AIDS epidemic within the United States. We seek to fulfill our mission through strategic grant making, capacity building, advocacy, and formative research. For more than two decades, we have supported community-driven responses to the HIV epidemic around the country that reach the nation’s most disproportionately affected populations, including gay and bisexual men, transgender women, communities of color, people living in the deep South, people struggling with substance use, and people living with HIV. To date, our strategic grant making initiatives have directly funded more than $104 million to local communities, and have leveraged more than $117 million in additional investments for programs that include syringe access, access to care, capacity building, HIV prevention, positive leadership, and advocacy. (www.aidsunited.org)

AIDS United, with funding from Janssen Pharmaceuticals, is pleased to announce the opportunity for grant support through the Transgender Leadership Initiative. The goals of the Transgender Leadership Initiative are:

1) to develop leaders in the transgender community to improve HIV service delivery for their peers;
2) to increase transgender leadership presence in HIV policy arenas; and
3) to create a cohort of connected transgender leaders who support each other and network to impact their communities for improved outcomes for HIV.

AIDS United expects to award grants through this grant making initiative by August 1, 2017. The average grant award will be $15,000; however, applicants are eligible to apply for grants ranging from $10,000 to $20,000. Grant periods must between 6 months and 8 months. AIDS United is offering three methods of submission for this initiative – written, phone/video conference call, or video submission. Written Applications and Video Submissions are due no later than 4:59 PM Eastern Time on Wednesday, June 14, 2017. Phone/Video Conference Application Submission appointments must be made no later than 4:59 PM Eastern Time on Wednesday, May 31, 2017, with final materials submitted by 4:59 PM Eastern Time on Wednesday, June 14, 2017. Applications completed after that time will NOT be accepted. All applications must be submitted electronically via AIDS United’s online application system, via the telephone/video conference call, or video submission process described below.

The transgender community is critically impacted by HIV and faces unique challenges in HIV care. A groundbreaking 2013 meta-analysis (Baral et al.) reported that HIV prevalence among transgender women was 22 percent in five high-income countries, including the United States.\(^1\) Overall, the risk of HIV infection among transgender people is more than other most-at-risk groups including men who have sex with men (MSM), individuals who inject drugs, and sex workers. Among 3.3 million HIV testing events reported to Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in 2013, the highest percentages of newly identified people living with HIV were transgender-identifying persons.\(^2\) In addition, data collected by local health departments and scientists studying this population reveal that high levels of HIV throughout the transgender community are compounded by racial and ethnic health disparities and a lack of transgender culturally competent providers. The leadership of the transgender community is essential to address the dire HIV epidemic in transgender communities, to improve transgender health outcomes, and to solidify transgender power in our society.

There are many reasons why transgender individuals at risk or living with HIV face marginalization. Deep-seated fear of disclosure is compounded by the threat of HIV criminalization laws and the realities of intimate partner violence, and the overwhelming possibility of being the victim of a hate crime.

Service providers lack cultural competence to deliver appropriate services and worse yet, policy makers may be unaware of the need to gather transgender-specific epidemiological data. A data review in 2008 showed that as much as 28 percent of transgender women were living with HIV, but only 12 percent of transgender women in the data set were willing to self-report living with HIV.\(^3\) This discrepancy suggests many transgender women living with HIV do not know their HIV status or even worse are hiding it due to fear of discrimination. Observational data is seen where transgender individuals engage in high risk sexual behaviors to affirm their gender or inject street hormones with shared needles. More efforts must be undertaken to recognize the realities of transgender lives and enable transgender individuals to take up leadership roles to address their community’s needs. With this reality, AIDS United is supporting a Transgender Leadership Initiative to identify and expand the leadership capabilities of transgender individuals in local communities to aid in the response to HIV.

In the United States, the response to HIV is guided by the National HIV/AIDS Strategy (NHAS) and monitored by the HIV Care Continuum. In July of 2016, the Office of National AIDS Policy at the White House announced its commitment to create for the very first time indicators specific to the transgender community.\(^4\) Those proposed indicators will help guide America in achieving NHAS goals to 1) reduce new infections, 2) increase access to care and improve health outcomes for people living with HIV, 3) reduce HIV-related health disparities and health inequities, and 4) achieve a more coordinated national response to the epidemic. Those first ever transgender indicators will be important epidemiological monitoring tools. However, as people living with HIV know well, leadership by others is not the same as leadership by those affected. Over the past 35 years, people living with HIV have created strong leadership and fought for the meaningful inclusion of leaders who are living with HIV in all levels of our national response. Janssen and AIDS United can advance the leadership needed by and for the transgender community to address their unique needs for HIV prevention, treatment, and care.

AIDS United’s mission is to end the domestic HIV epidemic and support the NHAS goals through strategic grantmaking, capacity building and technical assistance, and formative research. AIDS United’s proposed activities for the Transgender Leadership Initiative will support the ability of transgender leaders to respond to HIV-related stigma, improve provider competency, and will bring a vitally under-represented voice in the national response to HIV to the table. Having transgender leaders at the helm ensures that transgender-specific needs stay at the forefront of these critical efforts, demonstrating the necessity of meaningful involvement of community members in HIV leadership.

In 2016, AIDS United received funding from Janssen Pharmaceuticals to provide support to five projects in 2017 through this strategic grant-making initiative.

WHO MAY APPLY?

Community-based organizations, AIDS Service Organizations, and individuals with community-based organizations fiscal sponsorship are invited to apply as long as they meet the following eligibility requirements:

- Non-Profit Status – Applicants must be non-profit, tax-exempt organizations, per the guidelines set forth by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) with proper 501(c)3 status. Appropriate verification of this federal status will be undertaken by AIDS United before final grant decisions are made. Applications that do not hold 501(c)3 status must have an already established relationship with a fiscal sponsor to apply.

- Organizational Viability – Organizations should be viable with or without the grant. These funds are not intended to help start new organizations or serve as a replacement for discontinued funding.

EXPECTED GOALS & OUTCOMES, PRIORITIES & MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS

AIDS United will establish the Transgender Leadership Initiative. Using Meaningful Involvement of People Living with HIV and AIDS (MIPA) as a guide, a tailored transgender HIV-focused leadership program will:

- Increase leadership among transgender individuals by incorporating MIPA principles in transgender advocacy for resources and appropriate HIV services for transgender people; and

- Increase transgender leadership capacity of organizations in either transgender-led or transgender-serving agencies by incorporating MIPA leadership principles in their efforts to address HIV and transgender populations.
Meaningful Involvement of People Living with HIV and AIDS (MIPA): MIPA affirms that people living with HIV must be involved in decision-making at all levels: their own health, in how organizations serve them, and how their communities and nations respond. From local HIV planning bodies to the President’s Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS, MIPA has guided and demanded that the leadership of people living with HIV be heard. The Transgender Leadership Initiative will mirror MIPA principles with the expectation that transgender individuals must be involved in decision-making at all levels of this project. It is the expectation that through the use of these funds, organizations, groups and networks will see a measurable increase of transgender leaders through measurable advancement of transgender people into leadership or decision making roles within organizations, community planning bodies, or networks.

Over the course of the grant period, AIDS United staff will provide on-going technical assistance to ensure that projects are being executed on time, and will offer other resources to ensure success. Of specific note, Janssen funding for the Transgender Leadership Initiative will not be used to supplement a local organization’s budget as staff time or general operating funds but must result in real and tangible outcomes related to a discrete project.

The recipients of grants will be expected to form a learning cohort facilitated by AIDS United. The Learning Cohort will select from among the grantee cohort a transgender representative to become a part of the AIDS United’s Public Policy Committee (PPC). This representation will greatly improve AIDS United’s capacity to articulate and include unique needs of the transgender community when forming a consensus for national HIV advocacy priorities, and at the same time, improve the PPC’s MIPA commitment by dedicating a seat to transgender communities at the policy table.

- Priority will be given to applicants that can provide clear plans and demonstrated capacity to ensure that people living with HIV and reflective of the communities impacted are involved in leading efforts to combat stigma, improve the policy or legal environment, and/or ensuring effective programs.
- Priority will be given to applicants that demonstrate the greatest relevance for this RFP. To demonstrate relevance, your application must address at least two of the below:
  ✓ Clear description of the need for transgender leadership in their community-based organizations, planning bodies, and networks;
  ✓ Socioeconomic and health disparities experienced by the target population;
  ✓ Opportunity and timeliness for policy initiatives that will improve the local response to the needs of people who are transgender and living with HIV or policy environment including why the applicant is well-positioned to play a critical role in this effort;
  ✓ The scale of impact that the investment can have on the local HIV response at it relates to the transgender community; and ✓ Sustainability of the effort after this funding cycle.

- All applicants will be required to demonstrate clear capability to promote the advancement of transgender leadership and are expected to have transgender leaders reflective of the target communities engaged, or poised, to play a leadership role in implementation.
